

Classic Festival

Berlin has always been an important musical centre in Europe. Already in the 19th century, people took part in chamber concerts to listen to the performances of well-known and (yet) unknown musicians. These concerts, which took place in small circles, were often a starting point for great international careers. The Internationale Beethoven Gesellschaft (IBG) with its festival „Young Classic Berlin“ would like to revive this tradition of chamber concerts. The IBG believes that by doing this, intimacy, detail and subtlety would return to the concert business. Modern streaming technology will make the concerts accessible to as many people as possible without compromising on their intimate atmosphere. The festival's chamber concerts aim to bring young musicians together with established artists, giving them prestigious performance opportunities and the opportunity to learn from the expertise and vast experience of their renowned partners. The festival aims to present varied and diverse programs including works from classical to modern era.

Supporting the festival offers you the chance to make a vital contribution to discovering the next great talents of classical music. But that is not everything! We invite you to an exclusive sponsor's concert of the festival's best musicians; a truly special event in a small, intimate circle. You will also have the opportunity to present yourselves and your company at selected concerts. On top of this, you will gain access to unpublished, unique highlight recordings of the festival. All sponsors will be mentioned in the festival's printed materials and online on the official festival's website, as well as on the IBG's website. We appreciate your interest and support of the Young Classic Berlin Festival!
